Well, Fiddlesticks! A friend stopped our work Monday Marching Tiger Band and with an e-mail that for a few moments took us back to our youth. Phrases such as - 'in like Flynn' (or Flint), 'straighten up and fly right', 'I'll be a monkey's uncle!', 'Knee high to a grasshopper' were just a few he included in the mes- ise sage. A younger sister read the e-mail as a forward and added another "I am going to snatch you bald headed". Charles Dickens summed it all up with one of his parade, it was clear this Christmas quotes, "Happy, happy Christmas, that can win was going to be like no us back to the delusions of our childhood days, recall to parade anyone from Elba the old man the pleasures of his youth, and transport the on the trip had experienced. traveler back to his own fireside and quiet home!" The whole bag of memories C-O-L-D morning to wait released by the e-mail probably had a larger impact on this writer Monday because of a landmark birthday looming in a couple of weeks.

The Giving Garden is still in business and thriving. They have a special planting day set in a few weeks and both green thumbs and novices are invited to join in the "fun". Also a local Farmer's Market has a scheduled opening in April. It is tied in with the Giving Garden, located against the levee (behind the old jail and Folsom house)

Summer time is just around the corner, and no, we don't know why Noah didn't swat those two mosquitoes as they tried to board the Ark!

Ultra smart, deep thinker Stephen Hawkins died last week at the age of 76. He lived a remarkable life. We have often wondered how/why he was able to overcome awesome physical hurdles and do such masterful thinking and problem solving. Then thoughts turn to how many more solutions could be found if the rest of us were confined to a wheel chair with only our thoughts. Oh, Hawkins was not all business, he was a big Star Wars fan and often wove the science fictions stories into his official revelations. Maybe that was just to lighten up the discussion, or it could be he saw more truth than fiction in those Star Wars story lines.

We claimed our spot on for this Marching Tigers parade in front of us. Before long, I realized the definite need for the early arrival as the crowd on each side of the road was five and six people deep everywhere you looked.

Where in the world did all these people come from?

There was green everywhere and greeting of "Top of the Mornin' to You!" could be heard all along the way. I looked across the way and there stood a man dressed as a Leprechaun, and yes, he had his pot of gold down by his feet! What a delight!

I knew at that moment, this was going to be a funfilled St. Paddy's Day in the Windy City of Chicago.

The parade began... and the anticipation of seeing the Marching Tigers grew much larger!

There were walking units, marching bands, traditional Irish bands with bag pipes -- those were floats and more. And, more than anything, there was enough Irish cheer to last a by Chicago's finest. It appeared a quick trip to the medical facility to get "checked out" would be followed by a nice rest in a jail cell for that poor lad.

But, that did not even slow the parade down as the units continued to make their way along the route.

When the Marching Tigers made their way past their 'fans' on Saturday, there was no doubt they were this group's top act of the day. The cheers most likely could be heard from a mile away.

A dream that began a little over a year ago, came to fruitition, and the Marching Tigers could not have done a better job in representing their city and school. They made Elba proud in Chicago!

For five hours each St. Patrick's Day, the Chicago River is dved green as part of the day's fun festivities!

With Pride!

If you've been to an Elba football game you've probably heard the band's dismissal at the end of the games after the Alma Mater. As the drum major ask several questions the band shouts back "with pride" and it echoes through the hole the stadium is in.

It always gives me a little chill having been a high up this year to host the school band member at Jess Lanier High School in annual Community Wide Bessemer, Ala. It also gives me a chill as a band parent to see my children taking pride in what they do.

I have four children all of whom have been in marching bands. My oldest, Andrew, was in the Daphne High School marching band. My second son, Adam, was in both the DHS band and here in Elba and was drum major his senior year. Aaron my third son graduated from Elba last May and is now in the Troy University Sound of the South and my daughter is a junior in the Elba Marching Tiger band.

Needless to say I have been on my share of band trips through the last 10-plus years. I have seen my share of disciplinary problems and success stories. I have seen those who were proud to represent their school and city and those who didn't care. I have seen that in both students and parents alike. I have been on good trips and nightmare trips but never have I been more proud than I am today.

The Marching Tiger Band and parents/chaperones were the epitome of "with pride" in The Windy City this past weekend. They were complemented in several places as being the best-behaved group. Everyone was always where for more information. they were supposed to be and was polite and well mannered. I was amazed at how easily we went from place to Newbia Baptist Church announces place and made transitions during long days without a

Everyone was attentive and serious when we needed to be and we also were able to relax and have fun as well. (There were even two Baptist preachers who might have gotten up and danced on the dinner cruise.) Of the three Alabama cities that were represented in Chicago this weekend, we were the smallest, but I think we made the biggest impression

I just want to say to Shaun Hammonds, well done!!! We are blessed to have you at EHS.

To the parents/chaperones, I would do it again with y'all tomorrow (ok, maybe next month). To the band members, you were awesome. To all of the citizens of Elba, the next time you look at the Marching Tiger Band do it "with pride" because they represented you "with pride"
